Algoz is a traditional, rural town located in the central Algarve, Portugal. Situated approximately 7 km north of Armação de Pêra, it is an authentic, agricultural community famous for its vineyards, citrus groves, whitewashed houses, and affordable local dining.

Why Visit Algoz?

Authentic Atmosphere: Unlike the bustling coastal resorts, Algoz retains a relaxed, working-village vibe where you can experience genuine Portuguese countryside living.

Local Markets: Algoz hosts the largest monthly market in the central Algarve, it's a working fair where local families buy produce, clothing, tools, and household goods.

A daily fish and fruit market operates in the large building in the village centre, closing at midday.

Fairs are held twice a year: on 10th August (São Miguel) and the last Sunday of September (São Luís), with horse-and-carriage gatherings, a pig roast, and food stalls.

Great Food: The town is known among locals for offering fantastic, reasonably priced traditional Portuguese restaurants. It boasts 10+ restaurants where a three-course prato do dia with wine costs under €10.

Location & Getting Around:

Proximity to the Coast: You are only about a 10 to 15-minute drive (approx. 7 to 20 km) from popular coastal beaches like Armação de Pêra and Albufeira.

Nearby Attractions: It sits conveniently close to major family attractions, including the Zoomarine theme park and the Krazy World Zoo
